Church." The New Jersey Diocese paid a few Hungarian ministers back salaries during the dissolving of the affiliation, the amount was satisfactory to the others, but not to Hamborsky, he thinking he should have received more. Therefore, he was sore with the Episcopal Church and everybody connected with it.

Rev. Nanessy continued saying, "He saw in the Hall-Mills case a chance to get even with the Episcopalians, as the main characters in the case are all Episcopalians." Rev. Nanessy went on saying, "I further think that Hamborsky thought he would be bribed by the defense to withdraw from this statement. It is no secret that Hamborsky needed money at that time and has always been in debt, and that he would do anything for money.

Rev. Nanessy advised operative to see the Rev. Nagy of South River, as Hamborsky was interested in having his church taken away from him. It has just been decided by the Courts that legally Rev. Nagy is not the pastor of the Hungarian Church at South River, N.J. This trouble was brought about, according to Rev. Nanessy by the inciting of the people by Hamborsky against Nagy, so he could get the Church.

P.S. In reference to letter Mr. Palzer showed operative sent by Bishop Matthews, wherein was stated that Bishop Matthews paid some of Hamborsky's debts. It is advisable to get in touch with the Bishop and find out who he paid the debts to.

Respectfully submitted:
